SHANDY HALL

Four months of repairs and refurbishments to Shandy Hall's north and east sides have now been completed, thanks to a grant from the DCMS and Arts Council England, and the skillful and considerate work of Pinnacle Conservation Ltd. We look forward to sharing the lovely old building with visitors when we reopen in May. Before then, please join us at Books, Blooms and Bric-à-Brac on Saturday 23rd and Sunday 24th March (see front cover).

In an illustrated talk Hidden treasures: recent discoveries at Shandy Hall, at Husthwaite Village Hall on Wednesday 20th March, 7.30pm, Chris Pearson will reveal some of what the recent building works uncovered. Generally known for being the former home of 18th century writer Laurence Sterne, Shandy Hall has been a lived-in house for 600 years, and traces of its history and evidence of former residents are still emerging.

EXCELLENT BIRD IDENTIFIER APP

Merlin Bird ID from Cornell University can identify birds from song recorded on a smartphone. It produces a real-time list of species with images. You can then compare them with other confirmed recordings and get tips on how to identify them. Download the app from Apple App Store or Google Play.
